Remarks:

1* Elective Courses suggested to be taken in Year 1

Students are required to take at least ONE of the suggested SOSC (BAP) Free Elective Courses in Year 1 in order to be eligible for admission to the relevant programme. If students have taken the listed course(s) below from the Department(s) as electives, such course will be counted under the respective Major to which they will be assigned after Year 1. Students are advised to take the following course(s) in relation to the Major they will pursue in Year 2:

	Offering Department	Course
Semester 1	Geography	GEOG 1005	Geography & the Contemporary World
	History	HIST 1405	History, Heritage & Human Communities
	Government & International Studies	FREN 1205/ GERM 1205	European Language in Context I (French)/ European Language in Context I (German)
	Global & China Studies	GCST1005	Approaches to Global Studies
Semester 2	Government & International Studies	POLS 1005	Foundations of Political Science
	Sociology	SOCI 1005	Invitation to Sociology

2** For Major electives, students are required to take one course from each of the following concentration areas: (a) Geoanalytics and Research Practice; (b) Physical Systems and Environmental Dynamics; (c) Urban Studies, Cities and Everyday Life; (d) Regions, Development and Resource Management

Students can choose up to two courses from the following (**): Population Geography of China; Energy Development in China; Resource Management in China; Problems in the Physical Geography of China; Rural and Agricultural Development in China; Urban Development in China; Selected Topics in the Geography of China. Whether Selected Topics in the Geography of China is considered a “human” or “physical and environmental” depends on the exact contents of the course at the time it is offered.

3*** One semester off campus period if students so chose.

4# Geography and the Contemporary World is a Major Required Course. Students who plan to major in Geography after Year 1 are advised to take GEOG1005 in the first semester of Year 1.

5^ Students are required to take either SOSC3005 or SOSC3006 to fulfil the requirements of Experiential Learning in Action (ELA). Geography students are highly recommended to take GCAP3026 Developing Interdisciplinary Field Studies for Environmental or Social Issues to fulfil the requirements of ELA. Students can take any 3-unit major elective course to make up the outstanding units.
